

EXPLANATION OF TIMES

Imsāk time	It is the end of Shar'ī (canonical) night in all four madhhabs. It is the time when the whiteness called fajr sâdiq is seen at one of the points on the line of apparent horizon (uġq-i-zâhirī) in the east. This time is also the beginning of fast.
Time of fajr prayer	The first time of the fajr prayer is imsāk time. It will be judicious and safe to perform the fajr prayer 15-20 minutes after the imsāk time written in the Turkiye calendar.
Sunrise	The time of morning prayer ends at the end of solar night , which is when the preceding [upper] limb of the Sun is observed to rise from the line of apparent horizon.
Ishrâq time	It is the time when the following (lower) limb of the Sun is as high as the length of a spear from the line of the apparent horizon, which corresponds to an altitude where its center is 5° above true horizon. It is the end of the karâhat time when the sun is rising.
Time of Dhahwa-i-kubrâ	Dhahwa-i-kubrâ time is the last time to make intention for fasting. Dhahwa-i-kubrâ time is the half time of the fasting period, that is Shar'ī (canonical) day time, which is before zawâl time. Shar'ī day is the time between imsāk time and maghrib time. That is, dhahwa-i-kubrâ time is half of the time between imsāk and maghrib. It is fard to make intention for Ramadan fasting by heart in the time from the sunset one day before till the Dhahwa-i-kubrâ time of the fasting day. It is the same for adaq fasting set for certain days and for nafila (supererogatory) fasting. But intention is not sahih after fajr (the time of imsāk) for the fasting of qadâ, kaffarat and adaq which is not set for certain days.
Time of zawwal karâhat	It is the time when when the Sun is within the celestial circle that circumscribes the region termed the shar'ī (Islamic) zawâl. In other words, it is the period of time between the time a period of Tamkin prior to true culmination and the time another periof of Tamkin after it. So, it is equal to twice the amount of Tamkin for that city. This period of time is twenty (20) minutes in Istanbul. It is time when performing salat is makruh tahrimī, that is, harâm.
Time of zuhr	It starts when shortened shadows start to lengthen. The shar'ī time of zuhr continues until the 'asr awwal, which is the time when the shadow of every thing longer than its shadow at the time of true zawâl by as much as its height, or until 'asr thâni, which is the time when its shadow's length increases by twice its height. The former is according to the Two Imâms [Imâm Abû Yûsuf and Imâm Muhammad], and also according to the other three Madhhabs, and the latter is according to al-Imâm al-a'zam.
Time of asr prayer	Asr is also called asr-i awwal. It is the time when asr-i awwal starts according to the Two Imâms [Imâm Abû Yûsuf and Imâm Muhammad]. It is the same in the other three Madhhabs, too. It is the time when the shadow of everything becomes longer than its shadow at the time of true zawâl by as much as its height.
Time of asr-i thâni	It means the beginning of asr prayer according to al-Imâm al-a'zam. It is the time when the length of the shadow of everything increases by twice its height.
Karahat (isfirâr-i shams) time of asr	It is the time when performing salat is makrûh tahrimī, that is, harâm, during the Sun is setting. It starts after the Sun turns yellow, an event that takes place when the distance between the Sun's lower [preceding] limb and the line of apparent horizon is a spear's length, which is five angular degrees. The period of sunset begins when, in a dust free, smogless, clear sky, the places where sunlight is reflected on, or the Sun itself, become yellow enough to be looked at, and ends as it sinks (below the horizon). This time is called Isfirâr-i shams . Those who have not performed the asr prayer have to perform only the fard of it [even] at this time but should never leave it to qadâ.
Time of maghrib prayer	It begins when the Sun disappears and continues till the shafaq (evening twilight) gets darkened, that is, till the redness disappears.
Time of karahat (ishtibâk-i nujûm) of Maghrib	It is the time when the number of visible stars increase, or, in other words, after the following limb of the Sun has sunk down to an altitude of 10° below the line of apparent horizon. The period between this time and the time of sunset varies between 53 and 67 minutes in cities like Istanbul of which latitude is 41° in a year. It is sunnat to perform the maghrib prayer in the early time of its period. It is harâm to postpone it after ishtibâk-i nujûm , that is, after the following limb of the Sun is sunk down to an altitude of 10° below the line of apparent horizon. For reasons such as illness, long-distance journeys, or in order to eat food that is ready, it might be postponed until that time.
Time of ishâ prayer	Ishâ-i-awwal is the first time of ishâ prayer. It is the time when the redness on the line of apparent horizon in the west disappears. That is, it is the time when the upper (following) limb of the Sun descends to an altitude of 17° below the surface horizon. The time of ishâ prayer starts at the ishâ-i-awwal according to the Two Imâms [Imâm Abû Yûsuf and Imâm Muhammad]. It is the same in other three Madhhabs, too.
The time of ishâ-i thâni	It starts after the whiteness on the line of apparent horizon in the west disappears. That is, the upper lib of the Sun on the line of apparent horizon descends to an altitude of 19° and the whiteness disappears. It is the ishâ prayer time according to al-Imâm al-a'zam.
Time of midnight (1/2 night)	Shar'ī night is the time from sunset till the fajr. That is, it is the time between the sunset, which is the time for salat-i maghrib, till imsāk. If the time between these two are divided by two and added to the maghrib prayer time, or subtracted from the fajr prayer time, the midnight is found. According to some scholars in the Shâfi'ī Madhhab, the latest (âkhir) time for night prayer is until the shar'ī midnight. According to them, it is not permissible to postpone the performance of night prayer till after the shar'ī midnight. And it is makrûh in the Hanafī Madhhab.
Time of tahajjud	It is the time after two thirds of the Shar'ī night, that is, the total time starting from the sunset which is maghrib prayer time, till the imsāk time, passes. In other words, it is the last one third of the Shar'ī night. Tahajjud prayer is performed before imsāk time. Tahajjud means to give up sleeping. It is more virtuous than one thousand-rakat prayer performed during daytime. Performing two rakats of qadâ salat, in its turn, is more virtuous than performing salat-i tahajjud.
Time of dhawn	It is the last one sixth of the time between sunset time, that is, maghrib prayer time, and imsāk time. It says in the explanation of Shir'at-ul-islâm , "It was declared in a hadith-i sherif, 'The prayers made in the time of dhawn at night and after prayers are accepted'. It is sunnat to start prayers with hamd and thana (salawat), and to rub the two pulms over the face are sunnat." One should seize the opportunity making istighfar, crying and begging to Allahu ta'alâ during this time.
Time of Qibla hour	The line drawn on a map between a city and the city of Mecca is called Qibla line. This line shows the direction of qibla. When the Sun comes over this line it becomes Qibla time hour. A person who faces the Sun at the Qibla hour he/she will have turned towards the Qibla.
